

NEW TAX BILL NOW TAKEN UP BY CONFEREES

Measure Enters Upon Final Legislative Stage Wednesday.

Washington, May 14.—The new tax reduction bill entered upon its final legislative stage today when it was taken up by house and senate conferees to adjust differences in the legislation as it passed the house and as it passed the senate.

The outcome of this conference, it is impossible to predict, according to the conferees. It is uncertain even whether an agreement can be reached without many concessions by each set of conferees.

The house conferees went into the conference opposed to the senate plan for complete publicity of income tax returns and will adhere to their restricted plan of publicity only when demanded by a congressional committee with authority from congress. They will insist on restoration in the bill of a house provision, accepting the plan of Secretary Mellon for stopping income tax leaks in existing law under which it will be estimated about $65,000,000 revenue could be derived. It is possible compromises can be affected on the income tax rates.

President Coolidge yesterday won the first clash in his campaign to keep government expenses within budget estimates.

The senate, by a margin of one vote, refused to override the executive veto of the Bureau pension bill which the treasury declared would require the outlay of $58,000,000 next year and of $415,000,000 for the first 10 years.

Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, author of the measure, re-introduced it almost at once, but with modifications. Among these were a reduction of $12 a month from the base pension which was provided in the original bill, bringing the rate to $60 for veterans of all wars, except the world war, and an average reduction of $5 a month in the rate proposed for widows of veterans.

Senators Fess and Willis of Ohio, voted to override the veto.

The action of the senate in sustaining President Coolidge's veto on the Bureau pension bill, encouraged the White House today to believe there is a possibility of the soldiers bonus-insurance bill also being defeated this session.

Administration supporters, at any rate, regarded the victory over the Bureau bill as "a hopeful sign" and they were urging the president today to speed up action on the bonus bill, which has now been on his desk several days.

DECLARES FILES HAVE DISAPPEARED

Washington, May 14.—All confidential files on government investigation disappeared from the Pittsburgh office of the department of justice shortly after the Daugherty inquiry started, H. S. Burton, a Cleveland private detective told the Brookhart committee today.

Burton said he learned this from Herbert Little, a Pittsburgh department of justice agent. Among the documents which disappeared, Burton said, were reports on liquor law violations as well as other federal crimes.

They were met at the train by local boxing followers and taken to a downtown hotel, where Carpentier will make his headquarters until he leaves for Michigan City for final training.

Sunday will undergo treatment by the Mayo Brothers at Rochester, Minn. for the kidney ailment which caused his collapse at Memphis, where he was conducting a revival.

WASHINGTON IS HIT BY FLOOD AS RIVER RISES

Swollen Potomac Nearly Four Feet Above Flood Stage.

Washington, May 14.—Nearly four feet above flood stage and still rising, the swollen Potomac continued today to take a heavy toll of damage as it swept its angry course through nearby Virginia. It is the worst flood Washington and its environs have suffered in thirty-five years.

Fifteen houses and cottages above Georgetown, a suburb, were swept away early this morning, when the Chesapeake and Ohio canal broke through its banks at Fox Hall road. Thus far the loss of life has been astonishingly small considering the torrential rush of the water.

Around Washington there has been none but outlying sections of Virginia and Maryland have reported a total of four deaths attributable to the waters.

Principal damage in the capital section has been property loss. Both sides of the Potomac below Washington are lined with summer cottages and residences, mostly unoccupied at this season.

The fifteen cottages that floated off this morning, were unoccupied. Early this morning, the river at Key Bridge measured 11.5 feet above normal and 9.5 above flood stage. Observers believed the crest would be reached this afternoon.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 14.—The Ohio River came to a stand here this morning with a stage of 37 feet, a foot over the danger line. Large sections of the residential section on the island and south side experienced flooded streets, while street car service was interrupted partially, and several railroads cut off. Heavy rains today caused much uneasiness, but river-men declared they were not sufficient to cause further trouble.

CHILD RECOVERS AFTER OPERATION ON HER BRAIN

Washington, May 14.—Ethel Bray, a fifteen year old girl, was recovering at Children's Hospital today after what physicians described as one of the most remarkable operations in medical history.

Ten years ago, the child fell and suffered an injury to her brain. Blood clots and scars formed on the brain tissue and she became subject to epilepsy.

From the right side of the girl's head Tuesday was cut a piece of skull measuring three and one half by four inches.

The brain was exposed and the infected portions removed.

AIRPLANE WITH CASH STOPS RUN ON BANK

Springfield, Mo., May 13.—Reports that $400,000 in currency was en route here from St. Louis by airplane and $100,000 arriving from Kansas City, put an end to a run on the Union National Bank. The bank remained open until 10 o'clock that night to accommodate anxious depositors.

The money from Kansas City was nearly all the loose currency that could be found Saturday night, as most of the bank vaults were set for Monday morning.

Of the amount sent, two theaters furnished $12,000, the Union Station $30,000, a large restaurant $7500 and savings banks $30,500.

A SHADY DEAL

It has just come to light that some shady deals are being transacted in Xenia.

The culprit is a Gazette-Republican classified ad. It has just sold an awning for Mrs. John McVay of West 3rd street, the same day it appeared in the "Articles for Sale" column.

This shady deal is a shining example of what a Gazette-Republican ad is able to do. When you want to put across any kind of deal, try a Gazette-Republican classified ad. It will help you a great deal. Call our ad-taker at 111 and see.

URGES ADOPTION OF COURSE OF STUDY FOR M. E. MINISTERS

Springfield, Mass., May 14.—Bishop Edwin S. Hughes of the New England area today, recommended to the Methodist general conference the adoption of a comprehensive and modern curriculum for the course of study for the minister.

The report was submitted to the conference by Bishop Hughes as chairman of the important commission which made a study of the problem for eight years.

The plan does not meet the approval of the ultra-conservative element in the conference, but it is intended to meet the present day needs for a broader education for those ministers who are obliged to depend upon methods of self education. In actual practice the plan contemplates the adoption of methods in use in correspondence schools.

The commission finds that only 20 per cent of the Methodist clergy have both college and seminary training. 18 per cent have not completed high schools; more than one half of the pastors are graduates of high schools and one-third have an eighth grade education or less. The proposed changes in the conference course of study are designed to aid those ministers who are obliged to get their education while preaching.

Conference members were aroused by the publication of a "blue book" containing utterances against the Episcopacy by high officials and publications of the Methodist Church. T. F. Hanson, a Methodist layman of Nebraska, and Jacob Fawcett, ex-justice of the Nebraska Supreme Court, are the authors. Among the high officials criticized are Bishop F. J. McConnell of Pittsburgh; Evans A. Worthly, a member of the commission on life service and Harry F. Ward of Chicago, executive secretary of the church social service program.

The church government system is condemned and utterances of church leaders who are denounced as too liberal in their views are objected. Total enrollment in the Methodist Sunday schools is now nearing the five million mark. The board's report showed an enrollment of 4,929,460, a gain of 510,201 during the past four years.

THREE GIRLS ARE KILLED BY TRAIN

Haskins, Ohio, May 14.—Three young women, on their way to a school reception and exercises here yesterday evening, were killed by a Baltimore and Ohio Toledo-bound special train. It was the belief of officials of the railroad that the vision of the young women, who were in a closed car, was obscured by a light rain.

The dead: Helen Scheid, Blanche Hickie and Mary Hoffman.

Miss Scheid, daughter of Daniel Scheid, lived in Haskins. She was driving her father's machine at the time of the accident. Miss Scheid had gone into the country to pick up Miss Hoffman and Miss Hickie, who lived near Tontogony.

MAC DONALD WINS VICTORY ON BUDGET

London, May 14.—Having won a victory upon the McKenna duties in the House of Commons last night, Premier MacDonald's labor government was practically certain today of carrying through the new budget unless unexpected developments arise. The government's majority was sixty-five.

The fight against the government's policy of lifting duties upon automobiles, clocks, musical instruments, and other articles was led by former Premier Baldwin, a Tory, who declared that American manufacturers would dump goods into England.

PRESIDENT MAKES FINAL ATTEMPT TO STOP EXCLUSION

Washington, May 14.—A final eleventh hour attempt to compel congress to backtrack on its action on setting Japanese exclusion for July 1 next was made today by President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes.

The president summoned to the White House Representative Longworth, the Republican leader; Representative Garrett, the Democratic leader; Representative Garner, Democrat, of Texas; Representative Snell, Republican of New York, chairman of the rules committee and Chairman Albert Johnson of the house immigration committee for a general conference with Hughes and himself, at which the international gravity of the pending exclusion clause was fully gone into by Hughes.

It was reported that the president and Secretary Hughes had submitted a new proposal to the house leaders by which the sting could be taken out of the exclusion legislation so far as Japan is concerned, but this could not be confirmed from any of the conferees when the meeting broke up after an hour's session.

None of them would discuss it and Coolidge and Hughes were similarly silent.

Election of officers for the Ohio Association was the chief matter of interest before the Cleveland convention Wednesday.

Loss estimated at more than $2,000 was sustained when the Jacobs Creamery building, owned by Charles Jacobs, and located one mile west of Yellow Springs was entirely destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon.

The fire is thought to have started from a "hot box" in a gasoline engine, used at the plant. The blaze started about 12:30, while Mr. Jacobs and his assistant were at dinner.

HUGHES DENIES HE INFLUENCED SALE OF SHIP

Charges Were Made In Connection With Investigation

Washington, May 14.—Secretary of State Hughes today issued a formal denial of charges in congress that his influence resulted in the sale of the ex-Austrian steamer Martha Washington to an Italian firm for $60,000 although the United States shipping board had an offer of $210,000 for the vessel from an American concern.

The charges were made in connection with the investigation of the shipping board by a special house committee.

"The statement that I had anything to do with the sale of the Martha Washington is absolutely false," Hughes said. "I have had nothing to do with this matter since I became secretary of state."

DELAY IS ORDERED IN COURT HEARING OF DAUGHTERY CASE

Cincinnati, O., May 15.—A second delay was ordered last night in the hearing of the application of Mal S. Daugherty of Washington Court House, O., for a writ of habeas corpus for release from the custody of John McGraw, deputy sergeant at arms of the United States senate.

The delay was due to illness of Arthur I. Vorys, of Columbus, of counsel for Daugherty in his case in the U. S. District Court here. Daugherty is accused of contempt of the senate in connection with his refusal to permit Senators Smith W. Brookhart and Burton K. Wheeler to inspect books of the Midland bank, where his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, made large deposits.

Covington, Ky., May 14.—Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the Atlanta penitentiary late yesterday by Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran, following his conviction on the charge of conspiracy in connection with a whiskey transaction in 1921.

OLD STAMPS AT ODDS ON BEARD OF COLUMBUS

Columbus, May 14—Christopher Columbus was slain 455 years before the anchor of his trusty barkentine was hoisted overboard and preparations completed for testing the good old American terra firma.

But, alas, a tempest evidently was encountered in landing or perhaps the Indians mistook Chris for a rum-runner, for within an hour after he had made port his face was coated with stubble that in all probability would have aroused the envy of the Brothers Smith.

These historical facts, not found in available annals of that memorable regatta, with Old World superstition, were not called to public attention by hair tonic press agents. Far more reliable data authenticates the revelation.

E. B. Powers, New York stamp collector and one of the most widely known authorities on philately, claims to be in possession of evidence concerning the hitherto unknown tonsorial condition of the dean of explorers. In 1893, according to Powers, the United States Government, desirous of commemorating Columbus' discovery of this continent, issued a special series of 1-cent and 2-cent stamps bearing the discoverer's likeness.

The 1-cent denomination pictured the man of Genoa sighting land from the deck of his caravel. Plain to be seen from the engraving there was not the trace of a beard on his cheeks. Columbus had landed when the photographer assigned to "cover" the occupational ceremony snapped the "close-up" for the 2-cent variety.

When the two camera men got back to their "dark room" and compared plates there must have been surprise. Powers said, for the second "shot" had recorded the celebrity wearing thick facial foliage.

"Unwilling to question the circumstances because they were engravers and not continuity men," the stamp collector explained, "the workers in the Bureau of Engraving followed copy and issued 2-cent stamps with the figure bearded, notwithstanding the shorn face of the 1-cent stickers."

Powers, who is touring the country to arouse interest in the systematic collecting of old stamps, said many a housewife, in going through the attic lore, had literally burned up scores of new crocks and perhaps, in some instances, an automobile by destroying stamps of issues prior to 1870.

Those faded love missives granddads received in her flapper days may bear a stamp that would bring the collector the letter's weight in gold, he said. Powers recalled that the most valuable stamp in the world recently was purchased from the French Government by Arthur Hinds, Utica, N. Y. It was a British guinea stamp of the 1853 issue and was valued at $37,500.

Heading the list of valuable United States stamps are those issued by postmasters prior to the first Government issue of 1847. Those stamps, Powers explained, are worth up to $1,500.

WORLD FLIGHT IS DELAYED BY MAJOR ZANNI

London, May 14—Unexpected delay in the matter of obtaining equipment will prevent Major Pedro Zanni, of the Argentine Air Force, from starting on his flight around the world until after the middle of June. Major Zanni had expected to leave London on the first lap of his flight by the end of April, but inability of manufacturers to deliver the planes required, will delay his start for approximately two months.

Despite this delay Major Zanni is not disheartened and is confident of completing successfully the history-making air voyage he has been planning for two years.

Major Zanni will head the third and last attempt of the present year to fly around the world. The two other expeditions already are under way, the United States Navy fliers having started from San Diego in March, and Squadron Leader Stuart MacLaren, of the British Air Force, having taken off from Southampton a few days after the American fliers started.

"I am not going to make any special effort to beat either the American fliers or the Englishman," Major Zanni said in an interview with International News Service. "I am not any other aviator. I am simply going looking upon my flight as a race with time to attempt to fly around the world and am making all possible preparations to complete the flight successfully."

Of course, I would like to have the honor of being the first aviator to circumnavigate the globe, but if the others accomplish the feat first I will not be disappointed. Despite the fact that I shall start two months or more behind the others, it is not impossible that I shall be the first to get around. It is a big job to fly around the world, and I shall always have a chance to finish first until one or the other of the two expeditions that have started completes the journey.

"I am inclined to think that the American expedition will succeed. It may take longer than has been planned, but the Americans have an efficient organization back of them and are well equipped for the flight. I am not so sure that MacLaren will be able to get around. He is taking a big risk in attempting so long a flight with only one plane, despite the fact that he has spare engines at various places along the route."

Major Zanni plans to use three planes in his flight. He will start from England in a land plane and will use this machine until he reaches Japan. He will change, in Japan, to an amphibian plane and fly this type of machine until he reaches Halifax. At Halifax he will revert to the land type of plane for the last lap across the Atlantic to London.

The route which Major Zanni will follow is much the same, generally speaking, as the route taken by MacLaren. It is similar, also, to the route of the United States fliers, except that he will be traveling in an opposite direction.

Starting from London, Major Zanni will fly to Paris and thence to Rome via Lyons. From Rome he will divert from the route MacLaren is following by flying to Algiers, on the north coast of Africa. From Algiers his route will take him to Baghdad, across India, with stops at Karachi, Djalpur, Allahabad and Calcutta. From India he will fly northward to Canton, China, with various stops in Siam, Annam and Tonkin, and, leaving Canton, he will cross Korea to Japan, stopping at Osaka, Tokyo, Hakodate and other cities. His flight across the Behring Sea will start from Petropavlovsk and end at Kamchatka. Major Zanni will be accompanied by Lieutenant Nelson T. Page, of the Argentine Air Force, who, although a descendant of an American family, was born in Argentina and does not speak a word of English. Lieutenant Page will act as navigator. A mechanic, also will accompany the expedition.

Mrs. Harry Connell and Miss Helen Hurley delightfully entertained with a china "shower" Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Connell on Pleasant Street, honoring Miss Helen Smith, whose marriage to Mr. Francis Faulkner, of Dunkirk, Indiana, will be an event of early June.

The color scheme of lavender and white, was used with bouquets of lavender and white lilies around the rooms.

The guests spent the forepart of the evening in playing Mah Jongg and five hundred, after which a contest took the interest of the guests. Miss Lucille Meahl won the first prize, which she presented to Miss Smith, the honor guest. Miss Smith was the winner of the second prize.

The young women were then ushered to the dining room, where covers were laid for thirteen. A large bouquet of lavender lilies centered the table, while lavender and white appointments were carried throughout.

A delicious salad course was served by the hostesses, after which Miss Smith unwrapped her many lovely gifts.

Those present were: Miss Smith, the honor guest and the Misses Sarah Siefert, Leona Heaton, Mildred Emery, Mary Jones, Ruth Charters, Lucille Meahl, Laura John, Mildred Connell, Harriett Keller, Laura Downs and the hostesses, Mrs. Connell and Miss Hurley.

Women to attract must Radiate Health!

BEAUTY is the magnet which draws all eyes—and back o beauty—Health—working silently—Red blood tingling through the veins—the glow of youth in the cheeks;—the spring of eagerness, of vim, o vitality in the walk;—the ever graceful air, unrestrained by care or worry—All the charms of beauty. All the works of health.

Men are fascinated by the charm of beauty. Women gaze with envy secretly jealous, perhaps—wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness that is not theirs.

But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that craved-for attractiveness—that beauty. Good looks is the barometer of one's condition. Good health radiates beauty. S. S. S. purifies the blood—creates new red blood cells—rids the system of impurities which make beauty and attractiveness impossible. As women to attract must radiate health so must they keep their systems free from impurities and their red blood cells ever increasing. S. S. S. does both.

S. S. S., since 1826, has been ridding the system of impurities—pimples, blackheads, boils, eczema and rheumatism—building red blood cells—aiding women to be attractive by radiating health. S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and barks scientifically prepared and proportioned. All good drug stores carry S. S. S. It is more economical to purchase the large size bottle.

THURSDAY WILL USHER IN STRAW HATS IN XENIA

If the weather does not interfere Thursday, May 15, will mark the debut of the 1924 straw hat for gentlemen. Dame Fashion has not been severe in her dictates, but yet prevailing modes will mark a change over the type of headgear worn last year.

The chief difference will be in the shape of the sailor type of straw headpiece, according to local haberdashers and a slightly prominent tendency of young men toward the soft shapes, whereas they have adhered strictly to stiff styles in the past.

The differences in the sailors will be a slight increase in the width of the brim—probably an eighth of an inch, while the height of the crown will remain unchanged. Panamas particularly adapted for wear by young men have been popular in Palm Beach during the last winter and are expected to prove popular here this summer.

Straws have been shown in Xenia stores several weeks, in anticipation of the open season for that type of headgear although few men attempt to bridge the gap between winter derby or felt and the straws, without the aid of a light spring hat, due to the usual backward spring weather here.

Straws officially come in like daylight saving and go out the same way, coming on May 15 and being passed after September 15. However, men are more conservative than women in the matter of introducing summer headgear, and usually a sudden hot day this late in the season has more effect than all of the official dates and brings them out like spring mushrooms.

Now read the first paragraph again.

MODISH MITZI—No Chance For A Foursome Here

"Good golfing weather is Mitzi's opinion. What she really means is that it is plenty warm enough for her to wear the new sports suit she has just acquired. It is knitted, of course, and striped, brown, henna and sand color. There's a skirt, a smartly cut waistcoat and a loose coat with wide sleeves to slip over the frock.

Polly's reason for thinking it a good day for golf is equally fashionable and giddy. Hers is a dress, also knitted, in two pieces. The skirt is straight and the blouse slips over the head and is held by a wide belt around the hips. The Goofer wears, on the half of him you can see, a pair of new plus fours. Fore!

"Here they are again," says Mitzi. "Adelaide and Harry occupying the landscape!" She is becoming quite resigned to it and even thinks how handsome they will look in a church wedding. Polly is delighted at the thought of a romance that she can watch. "Two is very good company indeed," says Mitzi cheerfully.

It may have been Mitzi's ball that just went whizzing by. Certainly neither Harry nor Adelaide knows. She has on a knit suit of grey striped in red—coat and dress. We wonder if she is about to reproach Harry for holding her hand. Maybe not. Adelaide is proper—but the end justifies the means.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture comes in daily contact with practically every family and individual in the United States. Its activities are no longer confined to the interests of agricultural producers, as was the case when the department was first organized. The consumers of our great cities have a very vital interest in the activities of the Department of Agriculture. All meat products which enter into interstate commerce to be sold in our cities and towns are inspected by the Department of Agriculture. The administration of the pure food and drugs act, which vitally concerns every family, is vested in the Department of Agriculture.

Under the administration of Secretary Wallace, the Department of Agriculture has become more and more the business bureau of the American food producer and the medium through which the producer and the consumer are brought into close contact to their mutual advantage.

The big problem which vitally affects both of them today is that of marketing food products. The producer is interested in having a stable and a profitable market, and the consumer is interested in having a steady supply of good food at reasonable prices. It is the solution of this problem which Secretary Wallace has stressed by developing the division of marketing in the department.

During the last three years the work of the Department of Agriculture has been greatly increased by the enactment of legislation in behalf of agricultural and livestock interests. The department has been entrusted with the administration of the packers' and stockyards act, the act regulating trading in grain futures, and the warehousing act as amended to cover practically all farm products. To handle this work effectively Secretary Wallace has set up splendid administrative machinery. The consensus of opinion is that these laws are being administered justly and fairly to all parties concerned, with the result that the producer is receiving more protection and fairer treatment than ever before in the history of American agriculture.

These are but a few of the more important functions of the Department of Agriculture quite aside from technical and scientific duties. No department of the federal government has been managed with greater regard for the welfare of the people and the protection of the interests of the public than the Department of Agriculture under the direction of Secretary Wallace.—By John T. Adams.

ATHEISM THE FOUNDATION OF FALSE VIEWS OF U. S.

Russians, banded in a society whose motto is "Down With Illiteracy," are worried by the size of the problem they face. They have persuaded a few to come to lectures at their "educational stations" in the cities. But the average Russian peasant turns eyes of dumb wonderment, like those of his own cattle, on the little he sees of their feeble and furtive propaganda.

The Soviet program is calculated to discourage the unbiased advancement of learning. For all that is taught must have a twist in the direction of two things—atheism and communism. No educator with his heart and soul in his calling can tolerate a scheme of intellectual development that is thus limited, and the unschooled cannot be expected to welcome a plan in which the limitations and penalties are so prominent.

Trotsky has a fantastic mental concept of the United States. It is doubtful whether acquaintance with the facts would modify his ingrained conviction that many of us are feverishly rearing airmen and many more are compounding asphyxiating gases for the aviators to release on poor old Europe. It is queer that the former Braunstein, resident of New York's East Side, should entertain such notions. It is more creditable to his intelligence to assume that such views are for publication only and that Trotsky utters them with his tongue in his cheek, merely with the idea of tickling the ears of the groundlings at Tiflis. In depicting us as a monster, gluttoned and swollen with gains of capitalism, resting on the surfeit of the spoils, Trotsky carefully avoids reference to the immense contribution of America toward famine relief, which saved the lives of millions of his countrymen.

SELF-RESPECT

It little matters that I win or lose,
Or whether distant strangers think me great;
Two ways to go there are, and one to choose—God help me never to desert the straight!

Fame may entice me and success
allure,
But what shall follow when the wrong is done?
Is there for guilty knowledge any cure?
Can one be proud of glory falsely won?

What if I hear men cheer, and take the prize?
Shall I rejoice if I have played the cheat?
Shall not that symbol stand before
my eyes,
A shining token of my own deceit?

GLAD SISTER ESCAPED OPERATION

"Physicians had given my sister up to die; they wanted to operate for gall stones, but she was too weak and could only talk in whispers. I got her a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and in three weeks she was able to get about and walked a mile to church." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre and Hemphill, and druggists everywhere.

God help me, when the choice is mine to make,
Beyond the glamor of the lure to see;
Let me not stain my crest for victory's sake,
Nor sell my self-respect for any fee.

following directions:

Old-Time Method of Preserving Strawberries: Pick over, wash, drain and hull the berries. Weigh. For one pound of them make the following amount of syrup: Put into a saucepan three-quarters of a pound of sugar and three-fourths of a cup of cold water; bring to a boil and let simmer for five minutes, then add the berries, bring again to boiling point, lift berries from syrup and place them in sterilized glass pint-sized jars. Boil the syrup ten minutes longer, then pour it over the berries in the jars. Seal airtight at once.

Strawberries Canned by Cold-Pack
Method: Rinse the berries in cold water, drain, hull and pick over. Then drop them into hot, sterilized glass jars, pressing down well with a wooden spoon. Add boiling-hot, medium thin syrup made by boiling together three quarts of sugar and two quarts of water for five minutes; this syrup should come to within one-half inch of jar top. Put on new rubbers and jar top and put top wire up but do not press down side wire. Stand the jars on a wire rack in the bottom of your washboiler in boiling water, which rises almost to their tops and watch the water closely to see when it begins to boil again; when it does, let it continue to simmer around the jars for 16 minutes. Now remove jars, press down side wires, invert jars to test for leaks, label and store.

Note: By "sterilized jars" I mean jars which have been placed in cold water, empty, and allowed to remain in the water till it is heated to boiling point and allowed to continue boiling for 15 minutes. If jars prove leaky, the wires are perhaps bent out of shape, or the rubber rings may be at fault; in this case, unseal the jars, put on new rings, and stand the partially-sealed jars in your wash-boiler for five minutes, then take out and completely seal, as before. Invert again to test for leaks.

Strawberry Jelly: This berry does not contain as much of that gummy substance, called "pectin", as many other fruits. Without sufficient pectin, no jelly will "jell" firmly enough to be used. Therefore, in making strawberry jelly, I advise the housekeeper to buy the bottle pectin now on the market, sold by most grocery stores, and get the booklet of recipes which the pectin firm supplies.

THE DESERVING

Who among us is the deserving?

Kahlil Gibran says in his beautiful way: "The trees in your orchard * * they give that they may live, for to withhold is to perish."

When work is well on and your heart is warm and your hands busy and your brain mounting up its ideas, then love is truly born, within you and joy is sure to be yours.

Then it is that the deserved things of life come to your door.
But to be inactive, to expect and hope for the gifts of others that have been earned by their hours of long labor, is to throw yourself into unhappiness and restless nights.

The harvester, coming to his couch at night time with hardened hands and a tired body, truly represents the deserving of this earth.

People must work with their heart if they would be happy. You must work this way.

For what is a handful of gold unless it is made golden by the rays from the heart?

The pansy asks nothing for its gypsy coat of coloring that thrills the eye. And the perfume of the fields that reaches your senses asks nothing in return but for your love for its gift.

It was Lowell who once wrote that Heaven alone might be had just for the asking, but everything else had to be paid for.

But no matter what you pay, unless you receive with an appreciative heart you have nothing after all.

The sculptor cuts with his chisel happily for he knows that he is shaping his heart in deathless stone. And he is sure of a never-ending appreciation, though he may starve at his task.

The deserving are those who give,
and give and give—asking nothing in return.

EXPECTS INCREASE

Washington, May 13—There was a heavy increase in American exports and a heavy decrease in imports for the ten month period ending May 1, the department of commerce announced today.

The exports increased $350,321,000, while imports decreased $110,108,- 000.

Total exports for the period were $3,670,938,000; imports were $2,977,- 077,000.

JURY IS EXPECTED TO GET DAMAGE CASE WEDNESDAY

Through a sudden culmination of the taking of testimony in the $25,000 damage suit of Mrs. Clara Nickell, administratrix, against Lincoln Funderburg, ex-sheriff, being tried in Common Pleas Court, the jury was expected to get the case late Wednesday evening.

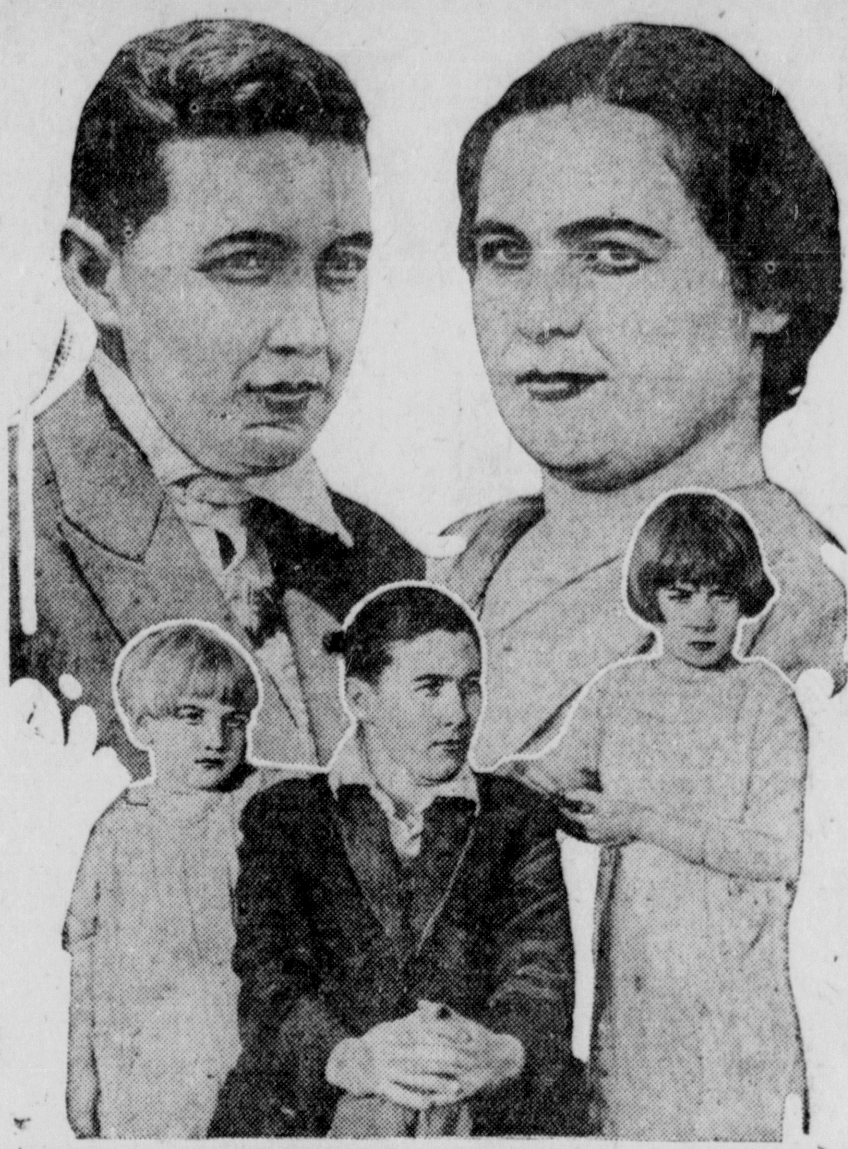

The plaintiff sprung the first surprise in resting its case shortly after the resumption of the trial Wednesday morning, after only hearing about ten of the army of witnesses summoned to testify on that side of the case.

The defense immediately presented its case, which resulted in all of the testimony being taken shortly after the noon recess Wednesday. Attorneys decided on an hour and one-half for each side for arguments and Attorney Charles L. Darlington of plaintiff's counsel, began the first argument about 1:30 o'clock.

Under this arrangement it was expected that arguments on both sides would consume three hours, or until 4:30 o'clock, and that the charge of the court to the jury would consume another half-hour, before the jury would be given the case. The witnesses used were the same who testified in the criminal case in December, 1922, and their testimony has been practically the same.

Because of the number of witnesses Earle Spahr was engaged as a special court bailiff Tuesday and Wednesday William Hurlless acted in that capacity.

Now she is through with being a "man," because she wants her children to call her "mother." She is shown here, in both male and female attire, with her two children.

FORMAL OPENING OF COUNTRY CLUB WILL PROBABLY BE IN MAY

Although preparations for the formal seasonal opening of the Xenia Country Club are going rapidly forward, a date for that annual social feature of the spring season has not been set, according to W. Crawford Craig, club secretary.

The formal affair will probably be held before the end of May, it is said.

The greens were opened for play some time ago, and are said to be in good shape for the campaign of the golf fans. Sand boxes and benches have been painted and the club has purchased a tractor that will be used in rolling the fairways and later may be used with a mower attachment for cutting the grass. Workmen are now putting the tennis courts in shape for the season.

According to the provisions of the new club constitution recently adopted by the directors, those desiring to join the club after June 1, must purchase stock. After becoming stockholders they will be taxed a certain annual fee. Dues of members who do not play golf were slightly decreased under the new constitution and the dues for those who play golf, slightly increased to put the assessments for keeping the links in shape on the shoulders of those who take advantage of them. There are only a few members, however, who do not patronize the links.

Another provision of the constitution charges the time of the annual meeting from October to April of each year. Officers elected at the last meeting in October will be continued in charge until the next annual meeting, in April, 1925.

GREENE COUNTY TO SEND DELEGATES TO STATE MEETING

Delegates to the Republican State Conventions from Greene County and the chairmen of the Republican organization committees here are expected to attend the special state convention called by the State Central Committee to meet in Columbus next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The meeting has no relation to the regular state convention to be held in June, and for which the delegates were elected all over the state at the recent presidential primary. Fourteen delegates from Greene County were elected at that primary to attend the special convention next week.

Endorsement of a Republican candidate for governor is the purpose of the special convention called by the Central committee. The state committee is said to be hoping to eliminate a number of candidates and prospective candidates and narrow down the field for the gubernatorial race.

Washington, May 14—Complete secrecy regarding the leasing of Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair was demanded of all federal officials who knew of the transaction, F. B. Tough, chief petroleum engineer of the bureau of mines today told the senate public lands committee.

Tough, who said he warned ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall of the danger of drainage in Teapot Dome, declared he was particularly enjoined to secrecy by Rear Admiral J. K. Robinson, who was in charge of the navy's fuel oil reserve lands.

NO TRACE OF SEVEN MIDDLETOWN BANK BANDITS IS FOUND

Middletown, O., May 14—Police believe the seven bandits who held up two messengers of the First and Merchants National bank here today, taking $17,000 in cash, have been in Middletown for two weeks, preparing for the holdup.

From several sources they learned that the blue sport car with its yellow body stripe had been seen frequently on the route between the post office and the bank.

All trace of the bandits' car has been lost. Five minutes after the robbery it sped through Trotton, six miles south of here; half an hour later it was reported near Franklin, six miles to the north. That was the last report of its appearance.

Two clues which authorities had have vanished. The hat dropped by one of the bandits, bearing a Muncie, Ind., sales mark, has been of no avail. Police said the license tag on the bandit car 171-465, was a fake, as it was issued to a farmer near Defiance, whose set of tags is still intact.

So rapidly did the bandits work that neither the bank messengers or dozens of pedestrians on the street at the time had a good look at them.

Edward Gehm and Arthur Fisher the messengers, will be taken to surrounding cities to inspect photographs in rogues' galleries in the hope they may be able to identify some of the bandits.

CHIEF FIGURES IN THE DAY'S NEWS.

Below: REV. DR. W. H. McDONNELL & GOV. J. A. O. PREUS, INTEL.

While a guest in the White House Governor J. A. O. Preus, of Minnesota, told President Coolidge the greatest danger to the Republican Party in the Northwest is a third party movement, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette. Such a party, he said, would carry several States. Rt. Rev. William Montgomery Brown, retired Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Arkansas, living in Gallon, O., will be placed on trial on a charge of heresy in Trinity Cathedral Hall, Cleveland, O., on May 27. The presentment grows out of 23 alleged heresies contained in his book, "Christianism and Communism," which has been printed in eight languages. Sebastian Rondi, a Sicilian lawyer living in Milan, Italy, has sent a challenge to a duel to Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian poet and playwright, for alleged defamatory articles recently published concerning the poet's Sicilian trip. Mrs. Lidwina Garbarino, mother of sixteen children, whose ages range from 5 to 33 years, has just won a Detroit, Mich., divorce on the grounds of desertion. Many of the children, she alleges, were driven from home by her husband.

GUESTS AT OHIO HOTELS HAVE FINGER PRINTS TAKEN; CLOSELY SCRUTINIZED

Columbus, May 14—When in Ohio don't be surprised if the hotel clerk presents you with a saucer of lamp-black with the request that you leave a fingerprint opposite your name on the register.

If one's conscience is clear neither need he be alarmed if the man behind the desk casually withdraws from the files a photograph which he compares with the features of the newly arrived guest.

It is not likely that the guest will be asked for his Bertillon measurements, although this information may be required if he bears a striking resemblance to one of Ohio's professional hotel crooks.

The clerk, whose duties may seem so similar to those of a police Bertillon operative, merely will be working in accordance with new rules of the Ohio Hotels' Association, which has organized a protective department for the purpose of driving out the sneak thief, professional gambler and forger.

Under the direction of experienced detectives a miniature police department has been organized with all the adjuncts of a regular law enforcement bureau, including Bertillon records, fingerprints, photographs and all other paraphernalia used in identifying the hotel swindler.

The protective bureau is operated in conjunction with the police departments of the larger Ohio cities. Weekly bulletins are issued, similar to the daily police bulletin, giving information as to the activities of widely known hotel crooks.

A central office in Columbus keeps in constant touch with member hotels, and when suspicious characters put in an appearance at any of the hostleries, warning is broadcast to other hotels in the organization.

"Heretofore the hotel has offered a fertile field for the professional sharper," said an official of the protective bureau. "Not only does he steal from the rooms and engage other hotel patrons in gambling, but he uses the hotel postoffice and banking departments as implements in committing fraud."

"The modern hotel swindler usually has a woman accomplice, who is present to throw off suspicion and to assist in winning the confidence of his prey."

In spite of the individual efforts of hotelkeepers to apprehend the swindler, he continues to thrive. The hotel protective bureau then was organized and through it the association hopes to make the hotel as safe as the home.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

It is generally believed that the normal eye has perfect sight all the time.

It has been compared to a perfect machine which is always in good working order. No matter what the object regarded may be, whether new, strange or familiar, whether the light is good or imperfect, whether the surroundings are pleasant or disagreeable, orthodoxy teaches that the normal eye is always perfect. Even under conditions of nerve strain and bodily disease, the normal eye is expected to have perfect sight always.

This idea is very far from the truth. Thirty years of special study given to the refraction of the eye have proven that the normal eye has imperfect sight most of the time. It is unusual, in fact, to find persons who can maintain perfect sight continuously for longer than a few minutes even under the most favorable conditions. Of twenty thousand school children more than half had normal eyes with perfect sight, but not one of them had perfect sight in each eye every day. The sight of many of them might be good in the morning and imperfect in the afternoon, while many with imperfect sight in the morning would have perfect sight in the afternoon.

Neither do adults with normal eyes have perfect sight all the time; what has been said of the normal eyes of school children being equally true of their elders.

Accidents on railroads, at sea and on the streets occur, usually because the normal eyes of the responsible persons for a time, had imperfect sight. When nervous children or adults cross the streets they become confused and are struck down by automobiles or trolley cars for the reason that they lose their sight, although they have normal eyes.

At night, or in a dim artificial light, the vision becomes imperfect and the retinoscope always indicates an error of refraction.

The reading of distant small familiar letters for a few minutes at least, every day is very successful in preventing the imperfect sight of the normal eye, as it tends to prevent strain in looking at unfamiliar objects. Not only the Snellen eye chart, but a calendar, a sign with small letters, or even a single small letter, may be used in practice.

COST OF FEEBLE MINDED TO STATE SHOWN BY STORY

Illustrating the need of another public health worker for the city, in order to teach hygienics to the needy families, and to prevent the necessity of placing more families under the care of charitable institutions, causing public debt, and an increased death rate, Social Service League officials are giving the following example first cited by "The Ohio Citizen," the organ of the Ohio Institute, Columbus.

The illustration is labelled "The Way Not To Do It" and tells the story of Mr. D. and three children admitted to a county home, August 26, 1887.

"The father was an idiot, the three children were feeble-minded. The mother, also feeble-minded, had died the previous year. October 2, 1889, Mr. D. died in the home where he lived for 12 years and 47 days, at an approximate cost of $3,300. July 23, 1915, John D. died after being in the home 27 years, 248 days at a cost of $7,500. March 1, 1920, Henry D., died at the home having finished a stay of 32 years, 155 days costing $8,900. April 20, 1924, Jane D. was still living at the home having spent 36 years, 262 days, costing $10,000. The total cost to the county to that date was $29,700, for the support of one family.

"If the mother had been committed to the institution for the Feeble-Minded early enough there would have been no children; if there were adequate state facilities to care for the feeble-minded in Ohio now many such families could be prevented that will have to be maintained at public expense, and if the State Legislature appropriates sufficient funds and the next state administration proceeds to build at least one new institution for the feeble-minded, part of this future cost will be eliminated."

Karl R. Babb, president of the Social Service League read the following excerpt at the monthly board meeting Monday night:

"It is a fine thing to feel sympathy when you see poor 'kids' in rags, unloved, uncared for, going to waste. But merely filling your eyes with tears doesn't help the kid at all. Tears never filled an empty stomach; tears never saved a derelict; tears never helped the unfortunate get a new start in life, nor eliminated the causes which brought him down.

"Feeling sorry is fine.

"But it means something really constructive when we add to our sympathies our time, our money, our energy and practical interest in eliminating the conditions which produce poverty, misfortune, sickness and crime; for these causes produce much crime.

"The biggest things in life are health, home, remunerative work, happiness and a fair chance in life.

"It is man's duty to help produce these birthrights to those who have not got them."

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

SALARY INVESTMENT INCOME INCOME

DRAW THEM FROM SEPARATE SOURCES

Usually it is not the best policy for a man to have his income from investments and his salary coming from the same industry.

The average salaried man is only familiar with a very small part of the industry in which he works. Yet he is apt to invest solely in that industry, believing that he is an expert in that field.

If a slump occurs in that particular industry he may lose his income from both investments and salary.

In most cases it is probable that the advantage of having investments in another type of business would be greater than any advantage the salaried man may think he has from his contact with the business he is working in.

It is a wise policy to invest in one type of business and draw your salary from another.

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

SUZANNE ATWOOD resents the fact that her husband, GEOFFREY ATWOOD, allows his secretary, MRS. LINDA VALE, to interfere between them. She herself has tried to thrust aside

DUNCAN HALE, a former suitor, although he is sure that she still cares for him. Suzanne is very fond of Atwood's nephews,

DICK and LAWRENCE LEIGH, and advises Dick in a boyish love affair with LOLITA, a chorus girl with whom he is infatuated.

XXVI—THE CRISIS.

SUZANNE waited for Geoffrey in the library. "Hello, dear." His greeting was rather casual, but Suzanne did not notice his tone; she was too much taken up with what she had seen when she looked out of the window.

"Geoff, you'll simply have to explain," she began, trying hard to speak quietly. "I've tried to have things out with you before, but you wouldn't talk with me frankly."

"You lost your temper," he retorted. "I suppose you want to talk about Mrs. Vale."

"I do. You rushed out of the house without saying anything to me about going, when your own nephew was seriously ill. I phoned your office and was told that you were out of town and wouldn't be home for a week. And then, as I looked out of the window a few moments ago I saw you sauntering along with Mrs. Vale. Really, it seems to me that, for a secretary, she occupies a good deal of your time and all of your confidence."

Geoffrey paused a moment before replying; when he did speak, he seemed to weigh each word.

"I had to rush away," he said. "And I did leave town. But I am not going to explain anything more to you now. As for your suspicions of Linda Vale, they are absurd. She is invaluable to me in many ways, which you would not understand."

"Geoff, I'm not an utter idiot!" Suzanne cried. "You are wrecking our marriage by letting this woman come between us. I'm trying hard to be sensible, and you won't let me. You know that there are plenty of men who'd take me about, give me the good times that you deny me. But I've tried to be what I thought a wife ought to be, and stay quietly at home when you weren't here. Why, I was worried because a party given by Dick's friends, a party that I thought you wouldn't approve of my being there! Well, I'm through with all that. If you haven't any respect for our marriage, I haven't any either."

"Suzanne!" She had never heard him speak so sternly before. "I am older than you are, and my judgment must necessarily be better. Any foolish thing that you do will reflect on me."

"And the way that you treat me reflects on me. Don't you suppose that people are talking about you and Mrs. Vale? Don't you suppose that they pity me because you neglect me for her?"

"That's ridiculous!"

"It isn't, it's true. Geoff, unless you give me a satisfactory explanation of Mrs. Vale's position, I shall leave you."

He shrugged his shoulders and walked across the room to a chair by the fireplace. As he sank into it she forgot her anger for a moment in solitude; he looked so utterly weary.

"If you would just believe in me, just drop your suspicions for a little while and have faith," he murmured.

"Geoff, you'll simply have to explain."

"Mrs. Vale is more than a mere secretary to me; many of my affairs are in her hands. I couldn't get along without her."

"But Geoff, why should you let her come between us? You go away and I haven't the faintest idea where you are; then you reappear with her. That isn't fair to me. Oh, I can't stand it any longer!"

The memory of her husband and the other woman walking along together grew so vivid that she could think of nothing else. "Tell me why Mrs. Vale has your confidence when I haven't it, and I'll say nothing more. But if you continue to treat me as a child—a half-witted child, at that—I can't stay here any longer."

He faced her then, his face white with fury.

"Very well, go!" he exclaimed. "But don't try to pretend to me that it's because of Linda Vale that you're leaving. I know of your infatuation for Hale; I've known of it all along. I know that he sends you flowers, that you write to him, and lunch and ride with him when I'm out of the way. Heaven knows how much further your intimacy has gone. I know that he's the man you were in love with when you married me."

"Oh, Geoffrey, that isn't true! Duncan is the man I was engaged to, and quarreled with, long before I knew you. But I've been true to you; my acquaintance with him has been the most conventional thing possible since he came back. Geoff, believe that. It's the truth!"

But Geoffrey had turned away, indifferently.

She started across the room after him, then paused. If he was determined not to believe her, why should she sacrifice her dignity in pleading with him? She could not understand that in that moment Geoffrey Atwood felt that he was a beaten man; that he had always keenly realized the difference in their ages, and that he had feared ever since he married her that she would tire of him and find some younger man more to her liking.
